We are unable to continue with public auctions for the foreseeable future, so our next auctions will be conducted online.

To test the system, we are holding this “One Pound Auction”, almost entirely of items from our own stock, in which every item has a starting price of just £1. Although we are putting out this simplified printed catalogue, we hope that everybody who can participate online will do so. Any customers who do not have internet access can still make bids to us by post or email and we will handle the bids on their behalf.

If you have received this catalogue by post, but realise now that you can manage without this printed version, please let us know, as we can remove you from our mailing list and save printing and postage.

One difference of course if you look at the auction online is that every lot is illustrated (in larger lots, pictures may well be of just sample parts of the lot). It also means that you can watch the auction as it happens, and bid while the sale is in progress – as long as you first register with EasyLive Auction.

This will be conducted as a “Live Auction”, as that will be the normal style for our main auctions for the foreseeable future. This means that you can follow the auction as it happens, you can see and hear me “calling” the auction, and you can bid right up to the last minute (although the earlier the better).

The whole purpose of this auction is to introduce our customers to this format, and to give us the opportunity to learn how to best use the system. Any mistakes we make will be with our own property, not with that of our clients. It’s a way for you to feel comfortable before we have a “normal” auction.

Instructions and rules for online bidders;

You must register with EasyLive Auction before you make any online bids. Please carefully read the Terms and Conditions.

There is a small fee to participate, and this is for each auction in which you bid. This covers part of the costs of using the online platform. The fee is either £3 paid up-front, or 3% (+ vat) of your purchases. You have to decide which option to go for when you register for each auction, and you shouldn't then change your mind. Clearly, if your bids are going to be under £100 you should opt for the 3%, or if you confidently expect to spend over £100 then the £3 is the better option. If you are in-between, that's your gamble ! The £3 fee is paid direct to EasyLive Auction, while the percentage fee would be collected by us with your invoice and then passed on by us to them.

The auction is now live, and can be accessed at www.stamp-shop.com/stamp-auctions or www.auctionontheinter.net or www.easyliveauction.com/auctioneers/robertmurraystampshop/

When the auction is running we will run through lots in numerical order in the traditional fashion, you'll see the current lot being sold featured on screen. If there are no bids in advance the screen will show an “Asking Bid” price – click the “BID” button to bid that price. From there on it will show the current selling price. If you have bid it will clearly show you if you have been outbid by someone else. Clicking the “BID” button does the same as raising a hand in the auction room, and is legally binding in the same way.

You will be able to switch on audio and video which will allow you to listen to and watch the sale. If you think your connection might be slow, don't use the video.

You can make “Auto Bids” in advance, at any time from the moment the auction is available online.

Auto Bids work in the same way as “postal bids”. If there are no other bids you will get the lot at the starting price, even if your maximum bid is higher. As auctioneer, I do not have access to see advance bids; that is confidential within the system's servers.

After the auction has completed, every online bidder will be emailed to tell them how their bids fared. If you've been successful you'll get an invoice, and the option to either arrange a collection time with us, or to get a quote for postage/carriage. All payments are made direct to us.

Don't delay when bidding !

If registering Auto-Bids, in the same way as before, if two people leave the same maximum bid, the earlier one will have precedence.

If bidding live online during the auction, always remember that internet connections can have occasional dips and glitches, so don't hang about; bid as quickly as you can. If you click to bid just a moment before I knock down the lot, but there's a small delay in the connection, you will miss the lot, and it will not be re-opened.

We maintain an email list which alerts customers each time there is a new auction live online. EasyLive Auction also send out notifications – sign up for “marketing emails” to get these.

NB some catalogue prices are from older editions, as some of the work for this catalogue was done from home without always having latest catalogues to hand.

NEXT AUCTION ----- We are working at an auction to follow this as closely as possible. This will be our "proper" auction, the first since February, comprising the properties of several dozen vendors, and with much interesting material.

ESTIMATES are now given as a range, so for example lot 1 has an estimate of "24/35", meaning a lower estimate of £24, and an upper estimate of £35.

A feature of this "One Pound Sale" auction is that there are no reserves - no starting prices - on any lots. So you can bid for any lot at £1 or more, and if nobody else beats you, the lot will be yours !

The Buyer's Premium of 12% remains unchanged for the present.

What’s the difference between this and other online auctions ?

Is there an advantage to this ?

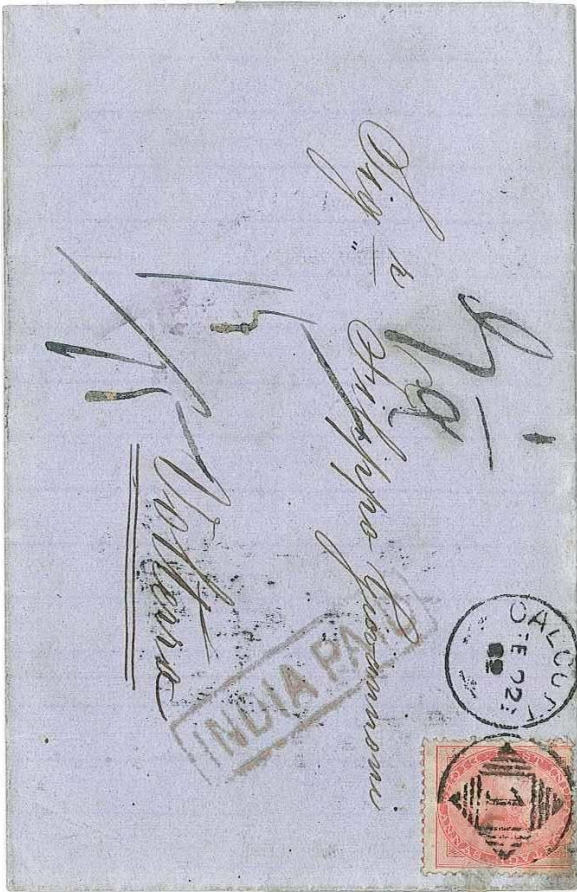

Yes !

The descriptions have been written by a 45+ years philatelic professional.

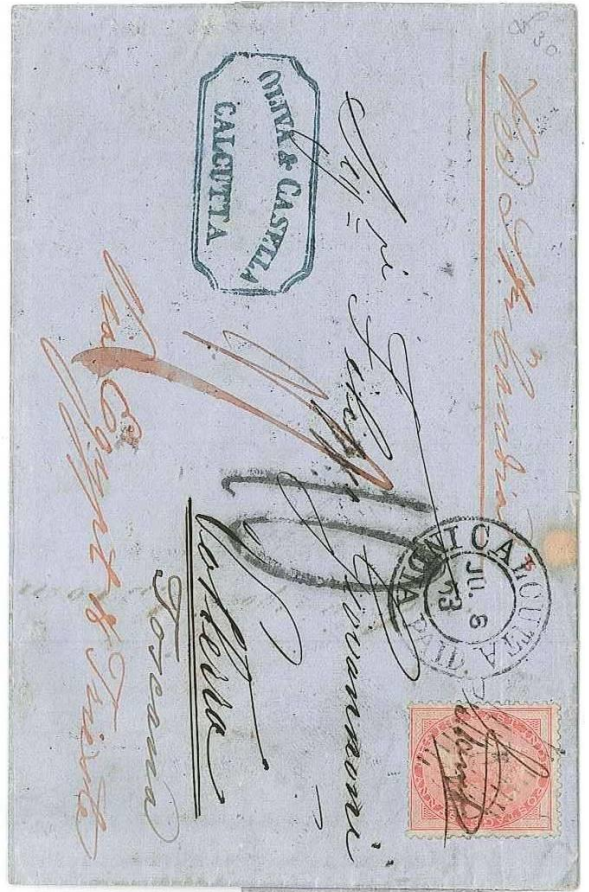

If you want to ask a question, you’ll get an answer based on that experience.

If you are local to us in Edinburgh, you can arrange to collect your purchases, saving postage costs. This will be done by appointment (face coverings mandatory, other restrictions).

If you buy a number of lots, you’ll save postage by having them all sent from one auctioneer.
